Certified Professional Midwife (CPM)

CPM Recertification Application
The Purpose of Recertification Requirements and Time Frames

The purpose of recertification is to encourage CPMs to enhance their knowledge and skills and to promote continued competence by requiring CPMs to demonstrate current levels of knowledge and skills.

To enhance knowledge and skills, NARM requires that CPMs complete continuing education hours and participate in peer review evaluations. Five hours of peer review, in one or more sessions, are required every three years. The continuing education requirements may be met by attaining at least 25 hours of accredited continuing education, or equivalent hours in documented alternatives as identified in the recertification application. The continuing education hours must be related to the field of midwifery, women’s health, or the evaluation and care of the newborn. The enhanced competency is measured in the hours of continuing education credit that are received, which include measurable objectives and an assessment of learning outcomes.

In lieu of continuing education, a CPM may demonstrate continued competency by retaking the NARM Examination. The examination must be completed before the certification expiration date as indicated in the recertification application. A passing score on the NARM Examination must be acquired in order to demonstrate current competency for recertification.

Recertification must be documented and submitted every three years. The recertification application is due by the end of the month in which the current certification period ends, which may be found on your certificate or by contacting the NARM Applications Department at applications@narm.org or 1-888-842-4784. The rationale for the three-year period is that the core competencies of midwifery do not change significantly on a yearly basis and an acknowledgment that continuing education opportunities are not always available locally on a yearly basis. Every CPM should be able to obtain the required continuing education every three years through attending at least one local, regional, or national workshop. Continuing education is also available online. Applications for recertification received earlier than 90 days before expiration will not be accepted.

For purposes of NARM Recertification, NARM uses the term “CEU” to refer to required continuing education, which may be documented in hours or in units. 1 contact hour is equal to 0.1 units.

Some continuing education workshops verify attendance based on hours while some verify based on units. In most circumstances 55 minutes in a workshop equals one contact hour or 0.1 unit. For example, a continuing education certificate might grant 8 contact hours or .8 units for the same time frame. NARM requires a total of 25 contact hours of continuing education for recertification which may be documented in a combination of formats (contact hours or units).

Incomplete Application Policy and Procedures
